

53RD ANNUAL SEMINAR AND EXHIBITS

ASIS INTERNATIONAL 2007

SEPTEMBER 24-27, 2007 • LAS VEGAS, NV

To: ASIS Seminar Speaker
From: Becky Mangan, CMP
Reply-To: bmangan@asisionline.org
Subject: Presentation Recording

Dear ASIS Seminar Speaker:

ASIS International would like to digitally record your presentation and make the recording available on the Internet following the conference. The recording will be multimedia format, integrating slide, mouse movement with your voice. Access to presentations will enable you to see and hear sessions you might have missed or wish to see again and enable a larger segment of community to experience your presentation.

In granting permission, you (and your co-authors) are giving ASIS International the right to distribute the complete presentation in an online multimedia format. In granting permission, you are not relinquishing your copyright to this material. All rights to publish your presentation in any other fashion and to publish related works are retained by the authors.

If you are using materials in your presentation that are not original work, you must cite the original source. If you are drawing heavily on another source, it is incumbent upon you to seek permission from the original source to use the material.

By granting permission to be recorded, you are asserting that the authors listed on the submitted abstract have obtained permission for the use of any copyrighted materials in this presentation from the appropriate copyright owners and publishers. Further, you are asserting that each author contributed to and consented to submission of the abstract and presentation.

If you do not grant ASIS International permission to record your presentation you must still upload it in order to use the LCD projectors provided in each session room; your presentation will not be recorded and a multimedia recording will not be available following the conference.

Select your preference as you are uploading your presentation files. You may also change your preference prior to beginning your presentation.