Education: Fellow of the South African Institute of Security—Thesis on Computer Security
Elected as a Fellow of the South African Institute of Directors

Years in Security: 13 years, Law Enforcement; 22 years, Security Management

Year Earned CPP: 1996      Year Joined ASIS: 1983

Why I Support the CPP: “Achieving the CPP is but one step on the path of life-long learning. The requirement for achieving a minimum number of credits for re-certification every three years is a process that keeps practitioners tuned to our ever-changing professional environment.”

How the CPP Benefits Me: “The CPP has given me an opportunity to grow personally and professionally. It has allowed me access to an internationally accepted process of measuring my professional capabilities against set standards. This in turn has given me greater acceptance from both my peers and other professionals in their respective fields of expertise.”

Value of the CPP: “The CPP offers an internationally accepted level of knowledge in the security management educational program.”

Why Security Professionals Pursue the CPP Designation: “It is the one certain method to test your personal knowledge of the security industry at a management level. You get to see how you measure up to other professional security managers in a program that has been developed by specialists in the industry in conjunction with various institutions of higher learning.”

Achievements: Mr. du Plooy has served as president of the Security Association of South Africa (SASA) and presently serves as the Director of International Liaison. He also served as chairman of the South African Institute of Security (SAIS) and presently serves as a Governor on the Board. Mr. du Plooy is the chairman of the Security Federation of South Africa (SASFED), which represents 18 different security-related associations with government and in other areas where issues may affect the security industry in South Africa.
