One of the foremost healthcare institutions in the country

Providing leadership to deal with the security issues in today's healthcare environment is vital to surviving in this ever-changing, increasingly formidable sector. Are you prepared to step up and meet a myriad of challenges—large and small?

Experts in the field walk you through solutions to difficult situations such as natural disasters, workplace violence, and active shooters. They also cover issues surrounding less obvious but no less frustrating challenges like home health security, in-patient frustration and aggression toward staff, and well-meaning but difficult family members who get out of line.

Review best practices and come away with viable, workable solutions. Learn how to develop new programs or amend current programs to be best-in-class. See how security preparedness and response are affected by Joint Commission compliance, disaster preparedness, Obama Care, and cost reductions from Medicare reimbursements.

St. Jude—a research and treatment medical center for the most difficult childhood illnesses—offers the perfect location for this program. A tour of the campus is included.

Co-hosted by St. Jude Children's Research Hospital and the ASIS Healthcare Security Council
