

ASIS Lifetime Certificant Application

Important!

A retired lifetime certificant who returns to work must notify the ASIS Certification Department and relinquish their lifetime retired status. This is to protect the integrity of the certification program, ensure that it adheres to the ANSI/ISO/IEC 17024 accreditation guidelines, and encourage the continued professional development of security professionals practicing within their field.

ASIS offers lifetime certification to certificants who:

- ◆ Hold a CPP, PCI, or PSP in good standing (e.g., not lapsed or expired)
- ◆ Have maintained a single certification for 12 consecutive years preceding the date of application
- ◆ Have retired (defined as complete cessation from any security-related employment or practice or representation of any such employment or practice) and have no legal, financial, or business interest with any form of security-related employment or practice, as defined by the applicable certification exam Domain
- ◆ Have paid the recertification fee for the current term

Violators of the Lifetime Certification policies and procedures are subject to review and possible loss of their certification status.
