

1625 Prince Street
Alexandria, VA 22314-2882
USA
+1.703.519.6200
Fax: +1.703.519.6299
asisonline.org

Dear Colleagues,

As I reflect on 2025, what matters most is whether we gave our members what their work demands - the knowledge to navigate complex decisions, the connections to tackle challenges, and the resources to help you grow professionally and succeed in the role you're in now or the one you're working toward.

This year, ASIS International turned 70. Seventy years of security professionals building a profession worth being part of. I think about the practitioners who came before us, who built this organization on the belief that we are stronger together. Honoring that legacy means equipping today's security professionals with the tools and resources to address current threats and prepare for what's coming next. That commitment starts with meeting you where you are at. Whether you are attending an ASIS event, digging into the many ASIS online learning tools, participating subject matter community discussions via the ASIS Connects platform, or preparing for an ASIS certification, you are part of a community that understands the realities you face.

Security management grows more demanding each year. Threats evolve faster than budgets expand, and leadership expectations rise while resources remain constrained. ASIS International exists to help you stay ahead of these challenges rather than simply respond to them. This annual report reflects the progress we made together in 2025 to support that mission.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Joe Olivarez, Jr.", is written in a cursive style.

Joe Olivarez, Jr., MBA
2025 President, ASIS International